ABOUT US

Our approach is to provide answers to your questions and solutions to your problems

Cleary Hoare is a boutique law firm that has been assisting Australians with tax planning, business structures, capital protection, litigation and commercial transactions for over 40 years. We have a proven history working with clients to achieve their personal and commercial goals and are known for our personalised service, innovative solutions and specialist advice.

Our professional team deliver innovative, practical and trusted solutions to clients Australia wide. We love the work we do and we approach our work with ingenuity and imagination.

Our clients are mostly private family businesses, are found all over Australia, and are both city and rural based. They are business owners and operators, contractors and professional service firms, as well as primary producers.

Our success is based on our down-to-earth approach. While traditional law firms expect their clients to come to them, we go out of our way to visit our clients and their advisers. We understand that when we meet clients in their environment we get a much better picture of their business and can therefore provide the best solutions.

OUR EXPERTISE

TAXATION

When planning your financial affairs, it is essential that tax is taken into account, as it is a real cost to business and your family. It is imperative that tax planning be undertaken in the context of broader commercial and family objectives, and not in a vacuum.

CAPITAL PROTECTION

When planning your financial affairs, it is essential that tax is taken into account, as it is a real cost to business and your family. It is imperative that tax planning be undertaken in the context of broader commercial and family objectives, and not in a vacuum.

LITIGATION

Cleary Hoare has extensive experience in litigation and dispute resolution and advises business clients throughout Australia. Dealing with disputes is a part of business life. We can help you to choose the best avenue for dispute resolution. This may be though litigation, but often can be resolved through negotiation and compromise. Our approach is proactive and our advice is timely, practical, cost effective and commercially focused.

BLOODLINE® TRUST

The best way to ensure that your hard-earned assets are protected and preserved for the benefit of your spouse, children and grandchildren, after you have passed away, is by incorporating Bloodline® Trusts in your estate plan.

A Bloodline® Trust is a premium form of family trust where the flow of capital is restricted to your bloodline.

We have all heard stories about people forming new relationships after the death of their spouse and changing their Will to leave all of their assets to their new partner, thereby depriving their children of an inheritance. While dramatic stories of family disputes capture our interest, assets are more commonly depleted or wasted through sheer bad luck, such as the divorce or financial misadventure of your surviving spouse or children. In these cases, any assets of the individual are at risk.

The Bloodline® Trust is unique to Cleary Hoare. We invented this trust to address our clients' concerns about financial stability in the next generation. A Bloodline® Trust provides this stability, ensuring assets are protected and preserved for the benefit of your bloodline.

Under most Wills, the Will-maker leaves their estate directly to individuals, that is, their spouse (if their spouse survives them) and ultimately their children. Unfortunately, this does nothing to protect and preserve those assets in the years to come. If the individuals to whom you have made gifts under your Will subsequently divorce, separate or suffer some financial misadventure, those assets may be severely diminished or lost entirely.

Rather than making gifts under your Will to individuals, you can make gifts to Bloodline Trusts earmarked for those individuals. After your death, the individual you have intended to benefit will control the Bloodline® Trust earmarked for them and be able to use the assets in the trust as if they owned them. However, those assets will not be at risk should the individual divorce or suffer financial misfortune.

Using a Bloodline® Trust in your estate plan, as part of your Will or as an entity in which to accumulate assets during your lifetime, provides a flexible, comprehensive and protected structure to hold assets for the benefit of your spouse, children, grandchildren, etc.

The Bloodline® Trust is unique to Cleary Hoare. We developed it, trademarked it and have proven its success time and again.

Establishing a Will utilising Bloodline® Trusts is more complex than a standard Will because of the detailed rules and conditions they contain. The cost will largely depend on the complexity of the Will-maker's estate. The potential cost savings, financial benefits, risk prevention provisions and tax advantages will far outweigh the initial cost. A fixed quote is provided before any commitment.

Under the terms of a Bloodline® Trust:

- The passing of the capital assets or proceeds is limited to the Will-maker's bloodline;
- Income may be distributed to a broader range of beneficiaries, including in-laws (at the discretion of the trustee);
- Assets are protected from attacks against beneficiaries, whether from personal creditors or the Family Court.
